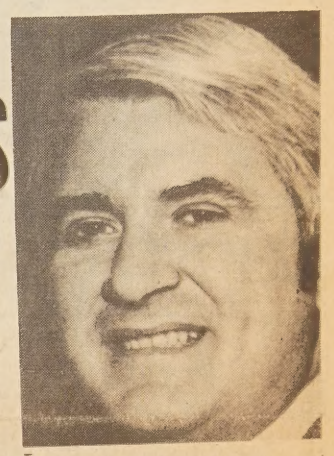
A SEPARATE BUT EQUAL COP OUT

The new term of South African apartheid is called "separate development". And it has an interesting ring to it, but in reality it still implies a vicious scheme of racial repression by the government on the black majority in that country. As explained, this black majority that now constitutes over 70% of the population occupies 13% of the land mass But apartheid will remain the same in that there will still be compulsory education for the Whites and none for Blacks; lower pay scales for black unskilled workers than for white skilled workers; no voting rights for Blacks and no property rights for Blacks. Currently the South African government is mounting a massive propaganda campaign to sell this idea to the rest of the world. So far the response has been predictable. Violence continues and riots and senseless slaughters are increasing in that country. A national United States TV network recently pointed out the fallacies of the new plan and the total lack of concern or change for the plight of the black South African. To continue to foster racial tyranny, any guise or plan is futile and can only lead to further bloodshed and the world's condemnation of the evil of South African apartheid. RIGHT ON!

UHLMAN TAKES STRONG STAND ON SERVICES AND SCHOOLS



Mayor Wes Uhlman, in his candidacy for Governor, has taken the most positive stand yet on the two issues which are of vital concern to the low-income and minority community.

With two children of his own attending public schools Uhlman has a definite commitment and personal interest in assuring that our schools offer the highest possible quality of education. The present system of relying on special property tax levies to pay for the basic education of our children is simply inadequate. It is also this unfair system which, year after year, forces many of our elderly residents living on fixed incomes to sell their property because they cannot meet the constantly rising tax assessments.

The state constitution clearly says that it is the paramount duty of the state to fund basic education. As Governor Wes Uhlman would reorder priorities to assure that education comes at the very top of the list. His position on this issue is proven by the fact that ten years ago; while he was Chairman of the State House Ways and Means Committee; forty percent of the state budget went to basic education. Today that figure stands at a lowly twenty-seven percent. To correct this situation will mean relying on state taxes to fund basic education; and until the voters approve a graduated state income tax; Wes is probably the only candidate with the proven legislative skill and experience to work with the legislature to find an interim means of adequate school financing.

For Central Area residents this is a particularly important issue as past experience indicates that only through state funding can schools in low-income neighborhoods be assured the same level of support as those located in more affluent areas. As Mayor Wes Uhlman has constantly supported Central Area school programs such as the Voluntary Racial Transfer Program, which has avoided the conflict associated with forced busing in order cities, and he has supported the retention of minority teachers in our Neighborhood's schools. As Governor he would be in the best possible position to deal with federal agencies and the state legislative to assure the quality of educational opportunity for all of our children.

In addition to his stand on schools Mayor Uhlman is the only candidate with a demonstrated commitment to maintaining the various agencies which provide vital social services to our community. With the demise of the Model Cities Program, Wes saw to it that Community Development Block Grant funds were made available for these agencies to continue, and in many cases, expand their operations. In fact, Seattle ranks among the top cities in the nation in regards to the percentage of these funds spent on social and health services. The same holds true for the large number of federally funded CETA positions he has allocated to support the operation of our community based and controlled organizations. For reasons of political expediency these positions; intended for the disadvantaged unemployed; could have gone to the police and fire departments, or towards bloating the city bureaucracy as they have in many other areas.

In the statehouse Wes would continue his policy of making those agencies charged with the responsibility of providing for the health and welfare of our citizens responsive to the people they serve. If the giant Department of Social and Health Services proves unable to meet this challenge, changes would be made; or a protion of their services would be given to those agencies possessing our trust and confidence.

Up to this point the other candidates have failed to address the issues of concern to our community. Nor is there any evidence that they have the experience or skill required to develop and implement a government program designed to meet our specialized needs. While the choice of a candidate is entirely up to the individual, this year's primary election presents us with a unique opportunity to determine our state's future direction. To do this we must turn out and vote on September 21, 1976.

As our children return to school this week their future is something worth thinking about!

Church News

Letter to the Public

Rev. Ivory Crittendon, pastor of the Brotherhood Church of God in Tacoma, is the originator and founder of Destiny House.

He has authorization from the City of Tacoma, permit 7349-L, to solicit needed items and materials. Such items will be for the rehabilitation of a building which will be named Destiny House. Destiny House will be a rest haven for despondent and troubled persons, discouraged alcoholics and lonely misfits, who can call on Rev. Crittendon for counseling. He will also have Job Training for ex-offenders who are not equipped and don't have necessary experience.

If you would like to contribute to this effort by way of donations, or materials, contact Rev. Ivory Crittendon, Brotherhood Church of God, 1620 South Adams, Tacoma, Washington 98405.

The Brotherhood Church of God's Motto is "Helping Someone Help Themselves."

Senior Citizens Educational Program

Senior citizens in the Lakewood area will find two new classes offered this fall at their center located on the grounds of Clover Park Vocational-Technical Institute. The new offerings are woodcarving and creative writing.

The two new classes and the "old favorites" from last year will be available to seniors beginning Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Harry Webber of Olympia will teach the woodcarving class from 1 to 3 p.m. on Thursdays. An Indian carving specialist, he is past president of the Pacific Northwest Carving Association. Basic techniques of relief and flat carving will be taught and students will do individual projects.

Creative writing workshop, designed to provide guidance and inspiration to those who have always wanted to write, will be taught by Lois Gross from 2:30 to 5 p.m. on Mondays. Mrs. Gross teaches classes for several other senior citizen groups and colleges in the area.

Old favorites which will continue this year include: painting, Betty Ellis, Mondays; physical activities and health tips, Margaret Mace, Tuesdays; arts and crafts, Elizabeth MacGowan, Tuesdays; retirement living, Anne Leatherwood, Wednesdays; meal planning and preparation, Betty Bishop, Thursdays.

Memorie Singers, Ben Yost, Tuesdays; basic square dancing, Helen Hulin and Roberta Sandvold, Fridays; advanced square dancing, Jim Bigelow, Wednesdays. Card playing is a regular Friday activity at the senior center.

Those interested in any of the classes and more information are asked to contact the senior center at 584-7611, extension 372.

Equal Employment Opportunity

In an effort to clarify the recent complicated Supreme Court decisions involving equal employment opportunity, Seattle University is sponsoring a three-day Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) Workshop September 28-30.

The workshop, sponsored by S.U.'s Continuing Education office, provides information regarding recent judicial opinion on EEO, and helps participants develop affirmative action plans for their respective organizations. It is designed for personnel officers, affirmative action officers, department heads and others interested in equal employment opportunity administration.

Three trained EEO specialists will lead the workshop. They are: Dr. Margery Kreiger, of S.U.'s Sex Desegregation Institute; Dr. M. Peter Scontrino, an industrial psychologist and consultant in organizational development; and Fred Kelley Grant, a special guest consultant from the Idaho State Law Enforcement Planning Commission.

The workshop will be held at the Providence Heights Conference Center, located in Issaquah, WA. Details and registration information are available from Seattle University's Continuing Education office, Seattle, WA 98122. Call (206) 626-6626.

Second-Half Property Tax Statements To Be Mailed September 15th

Second-half 1976 real and personal property tax statements will be mailed on September 15th, Pierce County Treasurer Maurice Raymond said today. Only those taxpayers who have paid their first-half taxes will receive a statement.

Raymond reminds recipients of second-half statements that October 31st is the deadline for paying second-half taxes without penalty. After that date, interest will be charged at the annual rate of 8%.

Second-half payments may be made by mail, in person at the County Treasurer's Office, Room 840 County-City Building, or at any commercial bank or branch in Pierce County.

Taxpayers who have not paid the first-half taxes will not receive second-half statements. In these cases, the entire year's tax is already delinquent and is subject to penalty interest. Taxpayers owing the full year tax should call the Treasurer's Office, 593-4667, for interest calculation. Delinquent tax payments are not payable at commercial banks.

Duffy Named Clearwater Superintendent

John Duffy has been appointed superintendent of the Clearwater Correctional Center near Forks, Milton Burdman, secretary, Department of Social and Health Services, said today.

Duffy was formerly assistant superintendent at Larch Mountain Honor Camp near Yacolt.

The Clearwater facility is scheduled to resume operation in September, with a staff of 19 and an eventual maximum capacity of 100 residents. Residents will be assigned to forestry work with Department of Natural Resources crews.

Originally built in 1968 as an honor camp, Clearwater has been closed since 1973. Burdman said it will reopen as a minimum security facility for men becoming eligible for release from the larger institutions.

Duffy was previously a classification counselor at the Washington Corrections Center, Shelton, and before that a chaplain at the Maple Lane School, Centralia. He earned his BA Degree in Philosophy and Psychology and his Masters Degree in Theology at St. Edwards Seminary, Kenmore, Washington, in 1943.

McChord AFB Offers Guided Tours

MCCHORD AFB, WA., (MAC) - McChord Air Force Base will be conducting guided tours of the installation each Thursday for individuals wishing to see the base and learn of its mission, according to the base Information Office.

Those wishing to take the tour, starting at 1:00 p.m. each Thursday, must obtain a ticket from the Lakewood, Tacoma, or Olympia Chamber of Commerce.

The ticket will admit the holder through the Main Gate (Bridgeport Way S.W.), where the individual will be instructed to drive to the Civilian Personnel Office parking lot (Building 773) and board an Air Force bus for the two-hour tourn.

The tour will include a drive around the base and a visit to a C-141 Starlifter and a C-130 Hercules, both four engine cargo/personnel carriers. Flying officers will be available to conduct this portion of the tour and answer questions.

The base is located approximately ten miles south of Tacoma, just off I-5, and is the home of the Military Airlift Command's 62d Military Airlift Wing, North American Defense Command's 25th NORAD Region and the Aerospace Command's 318th Fighter Interceptor Squadron.

The first tour will begin on Thursday, September 16, 1976.

Letter to the Editor

READER SENDS WARNING TO YOUNGSTERS

To the Little People:

Yes, September 9, 1976 - School Time, and Daddy wants to talk to his little people. Take care that no one blinds you and leads you to ungodly worlds of pep pills, and reds, and acid. There are some that even come from Mommy's purse, so be careful with the bad man. He's cool and doesn't care who gets hurt on the way. But Daddy does and knows little people must pay with their lives. Mommy and Daddy care.

So if you see the big bad wolf coming around the corner of the hall, tell him to take his peanuts to the crazy house, because that's also going to be his last stop.

Daddy and Mommy know a lot about the big bad walf. He can hurt that pretty body and mind for ever and ever. Daddy and Mommy care, so stay away from the halls and sit outside in the fresh air and grass.

So if you must play, don't play with your life. It's taking the poor as well as the rich, so just remember school teaches the need of the flesh, but Daddy teaches the needs of the inner self, and that's where life is, in the end of the game.

God Bless You In Christ,
Raul Cavazos

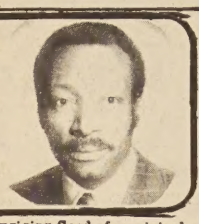
The Wall Street West Report

by Abe Moore



Newsweek reports on the surprising flood of municipal bonds. Municipal bond financing is running at record levels - flying in the face of predictions that New York's financial woes would put a damper on all municipal borrowing in 1976. In the first seven months of the year, state and local governments raised $19.8 billion in the long-term bond market, and most analysts feel municipal financing in 1976 will equal or exceed the record $30.7 billion raised in 1975.

According to Roger Klein, director of economic research at the Securities Industry Assn., the long-term municipal market has been so strong because many state and local governments, having learned their lesson from New York City's inability to tap the market last year, are not skittish about relying as heavily as they had on short-term debt. Although short-term borrowing picked up in July, it has been at low levels all year. In the past seven months of 1976, state and local governments borrowed only $13.6 billion short-term vs $18.5 billion in the same period last year.

Receptive. Not only are borrowers more interested in getting long-term financing, says Siesel E. Canaday Jr., vice-president of John Nuveen & Co., but the markets are more receptive. Now everyone except New York City can borrow.

"And this year," Canaday says, "the atmosphere is more settled. Many issuers in New York State have access to the markets which they didn't last year, and those issuers such as Massachusetts or Detroit who paid very high rates are paying less."

He also points to another reason for the record amount of long-term municipal borrowing this year: A lot of stat and local governments thought interest rates would be much higher in the second half than in the first, so they locked up their funds early.
